The Mahaney Company was founded by John Francis Mahaney. A Michigan native, Mahaney started his post-WWII work in Davis, California, as an agricultural chemical salesman working the state's backroads. In 1951, he founded his own farm supply wholesale firm working out of his garage. The Mahaney Company specializes in agricultural, ranch and industrial hardware supplies.

Loctite Poly Tree Rope

- Uniquely constructed in that the individual monofilaments are bonded together by a tough spiral wrap
- This special construction makes possible a strong single ply tree rope with bulk to better hold knots
- Has excellent abrasion resistance. *It is flexible to quickly and easily secure and reinforce fruit laden branches and it can be retied as conditions warrant
- Since Loctite tree rope is a synthetic product, it is virtually unaffected by climate conditions and will not rot or mildew
- Saves the grower money on tree rope requirements because its use is amortized for more than one season as opposed to conventional natural fiber tree ropes
- Average tensile strength 620 lbs.
- Black in color to better withstand sunlight
- 950' per roll, 8 rolls in a bale

Red Rooster budding strips offer faster application and no preparation. They are easily and quickly attached. They have even pressure and cover entire bound area offering greater protection. The strips expand with growth and are self-releasing. They deteriorate in 2 to 3 weeks, automatically loosening. The buds will knit faster.

OTHER SIZES CAN BE SPECIAL ORDERED

- Permeability
- Faster & Easier Application
- Self-Releasing • Biodegradable
- All Weather Use • Environment Friendly
- Reduces Cost & Saves Time
